Who Will Move the Ladder? - Lyrics

Once upon a time, not so long ago
In Jerusalem they say
There was a ladder, but no one could agree
Who could move it away
So they fight and toil, to this very day
At the place where Christ raised from the dead
But to no avail, the ladder still remains
While the world looks on and shakes their head

Who will move the ladder, and put an end to this bickering Who will move the ladder, and proclaim Jesus as King

You say a ladder is a petty thing
And friend I would agree
But we've divided over lesser things
How can they see our unity?
Are we one body, or are we each a head
Is Christ alive or is He dead

Will you move the ladder, and put an end to this bickering Will you move the ladder, and proclaim Jesus as King

How blessed are, those who work for peace For they'll be called the sons of God So let's tear down the walls, why not start today? Won't you join with me and say

I will move the ladder, and put an end to this bickering I will move the ladder, and proclaim Jesus as King
